O. , 2006. LC Number: KF26 . C693 2002h OCLC Number: (OCoLC)63202294 Subject: Tourism -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 11 Our year-to-date room demand is up 3.9 percent through July 2002 and many other economic signs are positive for our community that is significantly dependent on tourism. Our belief is that our Midwestern, small town location, as well as the pre-dominance of visitors who drive to our destination, as opposed to flying, have been positive attributes under these particular circumstances. In addition, our history of overt patriotism, genuine hospitality, and family values seem to be in perfect alignment with the current mood of our nation and disposition of the traveling public. TESTIMONY The tragedies of September 11, 2001 created an immediate impact in our vital tourism community of Branson, Missouri, in the same way it did other tourism destinations and other small towns throughout the United States. While we are no longer reeling from the impact, we feel a lingering uncertainty about our economic future. As you might suspect in a community of less than 5,000 residents, that hosts 7 million visitors annually, the people of Branson are significantly dependent on tourism for our economic well-being. Branson History To understand the impact of this incident on Branson, you should know a little about how Branson became a tourism phenomenon. Located in the Ozark Mountains in an area too rugged for farming and too remote for other industrial development, Branson began to develop a tourism industry in the early 1900s. Lakes, mountain scenery and the simple lifestyle of the Ozarks as...
