They are holding down the value of their product if they can. Let me give you an illustration. I am doing this for the benefit of getting this thing right as soon as we can to help the industry. I want to help, and so do the other gentlemen here. I know of many importations under an ad valorem duty that have defrauded this Government out of large amounts of revenue that should have been paid. I gave an illustration yesterday where we were exporting horses brought in from Canada at 225 a head. The duty on horses in Canada is 25 per cent and exactly the same class of horses that we were selling for 225 a head, the Canadians valued at 27 and so they paid only 2. 70. They did not pay on the value of the horses then. Another thing I discovered was that we were importing French white beans from Canada for 60 cents a bushel, which we were selling abroad at the same time at 3 a bushel. There is evidence of fraud there; there is no question about it. Therefore, wherever it is possible to put a specific duty on an important article---and it is in the case of your tungsten, if I see right--it should be done. Mr. MCKENNA. Sure. The CHAIRMAN. We should put a specific duty upon the purity of the ore; in other words, the metallic or tungsten content, instead of an...
